

Michael and Anne talk about their future

Michael and Anne are the proud parents of three adult sons and a gorgeous baby grand-daughter. Their youngest son, David, lives at home with them and has been attending The Junction Works' disability day program since he left school over ten years ago.

Anne says David really enjoys his time at The Junction Works, particularly the variety of activities he's involved in and the good friends he's made. "David is very social. He loves involvement with people", she explains.

Michael and Anne are aware of how easy it is for people with a disability to slip into isolation. So it's important to them that David continues to enjoy a strong social network. Like most parents, they rank connectedness to family and friends, along with good health and happiness as their primary aspirations for their son.

In fact, being able to spend time "just hanging out with mates, cooking a meal or watching the footy" is one of the tangible benefits they see being provided by The Junction Works' Living Skills and Respite House.

They also see the House providing David with the opportunity to develop skills that will assist him increase his independence; like problem solving, decision making and confidence in functioning in new and different environments. Skills that can, as his Dad puts it, "further his horizons".

These skills provide David with the confidence to transition into alternate living arrangements when the family's situation changes.

The Living Skills and Respite House will enable Michael and Anne to finally take some well-earned respite, to enable them to enjoy some timeout and maintain their own social life and wellbeing.

From the CEO

It's fast approaching that time of the year again, when supporters of The Junction Works take up a challenge for our JUNK FREE JUNE fundraising campaign.

This year is our fourth JUNK FREE JUNE, and I'm seeking your support to help us build a Living Skills and Respite House.

This invaluable facility will support young people with disabilities to develop the skills they need to successfully move into a more independent living arrangement – whether at home with their family or in a home of their own. The facility will also provide parents and carers like Michael and Anne, with much needed respite from the constancy of care.

Our JUNK FREE JUNE target this year is $50,000.

You can participate in JUNK FREE JUNE in a number of ways. You can:

- hold a one-off fundraising event (see suggestions later in this newsletter)
- join me in a month long health challenge (I'll be giving up alcohol and junk food!)
- sponsor one of your workmate's challenges
- hold a JUNK FREE JUNE challenge event in your workplace, club or family
- donate directly to JUNK FREE JUNE (see directions later in this newsletter).

To find out more about how you can take part in JUNK FREE JUNE, contact The Junction Works on 8777 0500 or keep an eye on our website www.thejunctionworks.org for updates.

Thank you for your ongoing support of The Junction Works.

Chris Campbell
Chief Executive Officer

The acquisition of Living Skills impacts on a person's community participation, recreational interests, personal care, and living arrangements.

- Living Skills refer to self-care activities such as the ability to dress, shower, and brush hair; domestic tasks like making the bed, tidying up a bedroom or washing the dishes; and community activities including catching a bus and shopping for groceries.
- Research indicates that there is a positive link between living skills acquisition and the person's wellbeing and quality of life.
- Even small improvements in a person's living skills can improve the quality of their life and their confidence.

What is Respite Care?

Respite care is a form of support that gives parents and carers the opportunity to have a break from their caring role. Respite care may be given informally by friends and family, or by formal respite services like The Junction Works. For many carers, receiving regular respite enables them to continue their caring role for longer. It also provides opportunities for their son or daughter to undertake new activities and develop social networks through their respite experience.

Acquiring Living Skills improves a person's quality of life

Age is no barrier to learning. People with intellectual disability are capable of learning new skills and improving on existing skills throughout their life

At The Junction Works our goal is to reduce the impact of the intellectual disability by building on the person's strengths and helping them learn new skills so that they can reach greater levels of autonomy and quality of life.

The Junction Works' Independent Living Skills Program is designed to help the people we support make the most of their abilities and increase their self-reliance and confidence.

The Program supports young adults with disabilities to make the transition from being dependent on others to living more independently with support from family, friends and organisations like The Junction Works.

The transition process is supported through person centred planning, intensive living skills development, guidance and training in developing effective support networks.

The Living Skills and Respite House will be a valuable facility for supporting the intensive learning and practice of daily living tasks.

Through our Independent Living Skills Program we encourage people with a disability to develop and maintain the skills necessary to cope with an ever-changing world. We help people meet their goal of being able to live as independently as possible through a combination of confidence building and practical skills.

How you can help

JUNK FREE JUNE is a fundraising campaign that is raising money for The Junction Works' much needed Living Skills and Respite House.

With JUNK FREE JUNE participants can undertake a one-off fundraising event or health-based activity which can be sponsored by your family, workmates and friends.

It can be as simple as hosting a barbeque or a cricket match with workmates, or participating in a walking challenge with your friends.

Alternately, participants can take on the full 30 day challenge over June and be sponsored to give up an unhealthy habit like alcohol or junk food, or take up a healthy one like a daily walk or swim.

You can even get your work place involved through a one off challenge or healthy lunch time BBQ.

And if we reach our goal of raising $50,000, GEO Chris Campbell says he'll swim with the sharks!*

JUNK FREE JUNE is a great way to get your staff and workmates involved in making a difference to the lives of people with a disability through team building.

In 2014 the staff of Lifestyle and Sports Physiotherapy in Narellan took on a 1,000km Run / Walk / Cycle / Row Challenge and raised over $1,000 for JUNK FREE JUNE.

* Chris will swim with the sharks at the Manly Sea Life Sanctuary
